Dear Valued Customer,

You are receiving this letter because you ordered the Asynchronous Personality Daemon [APD] media kit in conjunction with your purchase of the device driver license that supports devices listed in the table in this document with the intent to use them on SGI systems. This letter explains software distribution, software licensing, and software maintenance and support. The SGI Manufacturing Center distributes the APD product in Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin.

The media kit you are receiving with this letter is APD 2.4. The drives added with this release are 3590F Fibre, license code SR4-359F1020A or SR4-359F20100A and AIT3 SCSI, license code SR4-AI3SI020A or SR4-AI3S20100A.

Because you have purchased drives from the SGI price book or the appropriate drive license, you are entitled to APD product maintenance. Product maintenance is provided in the form of corrective product updates. Product updates can be ordered from the SGI Manufacturing Center. On certain occasions, we will contact all users by e-mail to inform them that an important product update is available. Product Support is also available. Product support means obtaining assistance from one of the SGI Support Centers for problems with configuring or executing the APD product. To obtain product support, you must have a support contract. Support contracts are obtained through your SGI sales representative. If you have problems with APD and you have a support contract, you can call your local Customer Support Center. For a list of Customer Support Centers, please see <http://www.sgi.com/support/supportcenters.html>.
